Seminaire et groupe de travail Européen sur la transmission des fermes et la continuité des fermes en Europe.

We kindly invite you to the first seminar organised by the European Farm Continuity Network. We are glad to host this seminar in the beautiful Maison Pelgrim, an oasis of green and inspiring tranquility in the heart of Brussels on the 10th and 11th of February, 2014.

Data on farm succession and access to land under farm succession conditions in Europe are scarce and often scattered. It is why we decided to write an article offering an overview of trends and future projections on these issues. We decided to work in a collaborative manner and therefore identified a small group of European experts on the issue. We organise the event in such a way that there will be mutual benefits for all the participants.

We obtained a scholarship for the article which will allow us to cover most of the costs related to the seminar. We organised accommodation near to the venue so as to offer maximum comfort in a homely atmosphere.
